INTRODUCTION

This catalog is the realization of a wish that the late Geo. Walcott had often expressed to me, that if some day, his collection be broken up, a complete listing of the many varieties of designs should be made to serve as a hand book. To attempt to list these individual designs by description and give a true picture which would include the color and other details, would make too voluminous a book, and at the same time would require from the reader too much effort to identify them.

Having handled very many patriotic covers, I can truthfully say that the condition of the covers in this collection is unusually fine throughout; it is the pick of the many collections that were offered within the last seven years.

Due to the differences in the colors in which the covers are printed and the color of the paper used for the envelopes, it is impossible to secure perfect reproductions in every case, so that the illustrations do not always reflect the true beauty of the design and the perfect condition of the cover. In some cases two or three separate photos had to be taken and mounted together to overcome this difference in the colors of the originals.

As will be noted from the table of contents, I have divided the covers into as many logical groups as possible in order to give the specialist in any particular variety an opportunity to select those in which he is directly interested with the least possible effort.

The sound of the bugle and the rattling of arms stirs deep emotions and tranquility of life and peace in communities can quickly change into a state of mental tension. As early as 1860, in the Presidential campaign, when patriotic feeling between the North and South was aroused by inevitable war, patriotic envelopes made their appearance. The use of these covers became a passion in both the North and the South, and post offices were made gay with these envelopes, some noble in sentiment and others hysterical.

Many might have the impression that these covers are plentiful; they are not, on the contrary they are quite rare, and the quantity readily available is relatively small. Paper at that time was scarce and of poor quality, and the majority of covers found are in dilapidated condition.

Therefore, I say, that this collection, a Museum piece, collected by the late Geo. Walcott at a great cost, is a unique opportunity for those already collecting patriotic covers, as well as for every United States stamp and cover collector. I know of no more fascinating and educational phase of philately. It is a pictorial account of what was unquestionably the most crucial period in the history of this Nation.

GEORGE WALCOTT

The man who gathered together all the items listed in this book was a natural collector from the time of his boyhood in Cambridge, Mass., where he was born January 26, 1871. At that time the adjacent Charles River was navigable for vessels, not having been dammed to form the present basin, and one of the first collections he made was of ships' names, together with date of construction, builder, general description, master, etc. He kept accurate notes of their travels over the face of the globe, gleaned from the shipping news in the daily papers, and in fancy visited nearly all the ports of the world until the voyages of these ships ended one by one, as noted in his copies of "Lloyd's Registry of Shipping". This hobby waned only with the sailing vessel itself and ran concurrently with an increasing interest in stamps, which came naturally enough through his widely developed interest in all corners of the world. Both were a wonderful training ground for a memory of unusual scope and accuracy.

After preparing at the Brown and Nichols school, it was natural for the boy to go to Harvard, for his father, Dr. Henry Pickering Walcott, was a fellow, or member of the governing body, a position he held for 37 years. On two occasions, due to the absence of President Charles W. Eliot, he was Acting President of the University. Dr. Walcott also held many other public positions, having been Chairman of the State Board of Health, President of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Chairman of the Metropolitan Water and Sewage Commission, a Trustee of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, President of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and President of the American Horticultural Society, among others. In the words of President Eliot, "He was one of the greatest public servants the Commonwealth of Massachusetts ever had". He had come to Cambridge from Salem, Mass., where his forbears had included the famous merchant families, the Crowninshields, the Haskets, and the Derbys, and before them went back to the earliest founders of the Bay Colony.

In college, George Walcott, significantly enough, concentrated in History and Economics, and by the time he had graduated in 1893, had definitely decided on a mercantile career. He came to New York looking for a foothold in the business world, and promptly secured one when he became a clerk in the New York sales office of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, of Manchester, N. H., a leading unit in the textile field.

In 1894, at Christ Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., he married Lilla E. Nickerson, descended from the Pilgrim settlers of Cape Cod. After living in Brooklyn a year, he established his home in Nutley, N. J., where his two sons and a daughter were born. He was prominent here in town activities. He was also Chairman of the committee which built the beautiful Grace Episcopal Church in this town and served as a member of its vestry for many years.

Business responsibility and promotion came with experience. Mr. Walcott became well known in "Worth Street", and gradually in other business centers. Later on, his name was a familiar one to buyers the country over. In 1913 a representative of Southern mills was looking for a merchandising man of capacity, and Mr. Walcott, who was ideally qualified and was keenly aware of the growing importance of the South, joined with Mr. Richard E. Reeves to build up the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company, which became the largest agency in the business, with sales in one year exceeding $100,000,000.00. But the last good textile year was 1923, and the industry from then on showed more and more clearly that it was beset with chronic and fundamental difficulties. In throwing his whole energies into combatting them, Mr. Walcott's ever sturdy health gave way at last. He died May 16, 1932, leaving a record as a merchant and a gentleman which needs no eulogy.

He was a man who could handle an amazing amount of work without effort, and gave himself little relaxation, though he was an ardent walker and fond of sailing and swimming. Apart from stamps his greatest hobby was history, of which he was a great reader and student.

From its beginning, the stamp collection was of a general nature, but finally various sections were dropped, until the Confederates, and the "Patriotics", were the main consideration. This was quite natural, for certainly no other divisions could show a more marked and interesting relationship of material to the history of their time.

GEORGE WALCOTT'S PHILATELIC ACTIVITIES

After his marriage and while living at Nutley he formed a general collection in the Sectional Imperial Album and purchased stamps from most of the leading dealers. After he moved to New York he decided to have the whole of his general collection remounted and entrusted this work to Eustace B. Power about 1919. The new collection was arranged in some thirty red Oriel Albums. As a frontispiece for each country a full page map was specially drawn by a well known expert.

Mr. Walcott had, sometime before this, decided to specialize in various groups of stamps and in October 1926 he placed the whole of his general collection in my hands for sale on a commission basis, with the exception of his United States and Confederate States. This group was in twenty albums and priced up to $79,909.00.

Mr. Walcott now commenced to specialize in stamps of the United and Confederate States on a very large scale. As an example I may mention that in 1927 I purchased the great collection of Confederate States formed by the late Hon. E. R. Ackerman. Mr. Walcott had first choice from this collection and made purchases amounting to $15,750.00.

A year or two later Mr. Walcott decided to part with his valuable collection of the Postmaster stamps of the Confederate States and I then purchased for the sum of about $70,000.00, excepting the Mobile 5c blue which he was plating, and the Nashville 5c, of which he had a grand lot on covers and wished to study up the order of the printings. These were afterwards bought by The Scott Stamp & Coin Co.

From about 1916 his great friend and helper was Mr. Edward S. Knapp, who undertook the laborious work of plating all the Confederate lithographed stamps and eventually he arranged all the general issues in a series of large volumes.

Mr. Knapp also undertook a large amount of research work for his friend in regard to his great collection of Confederate "PAID" covers and Confederate history in general. I think equally with his Confederates Mr. Walcott loved his Patriotic Envelopes used during the Civil War. He had great trouble with his eyes at this time and was most fortunate in having the help of such a keen philatelist as E. S. Knapp.

Prior to the depression of 1929 Mr. Walcott asked me to see the officials of the New York Public Library and to find out upon what conditions they would accept his whole collection of the Confederate States and the U. S. Patriotic covers. I saw Mr. Anderson at the library and discussed the terms, which were that they would accept the collections if the donor would undertake to provide the necessary cases and frames and pay for installation. But bad times came on, parts of the collection had to be sold and Mr. Walcott's generous plans could not be carried out.

The United States issues Mr. Walcott specialized are as follows:

He had some three hundred of the 5c and 10c, a large number being on covers. In the 5c there was a perfection strip of three with large margins with a Montreal town cancellation. In the 10c a strip of three showing the two shifts, a magnificent item. In this issue he had quite a number of railroad cancellations. The pick of this group, some 200 copies, he sold to Mr. P. H. Ward.

1861 5 CENTS, BUFF

Mr. Walcott was particularly fond of this stamp and had several hundred copies including a grand lot on covers in singles, pairs, strips and in combination with other stamps. The pick of this group was arranged by Mr. E. S. Knapp and afterwards purchased by The Scott Stamp and Coin Co.

1869

Mr. Walcott formed a really superb collection of this issue and in it a special collection of the 6 cents. He had unused blocks of all except the 15c Type I and the 90c, and in the used he had the only known block of the 15c, Type I, from the collection of Sir Nicholas Waterhouse. This issue was also bought by Mr. P. H. Ward.

1893 COLUMBIAN ISSUE

He had a remarkable lot of these: The 1c to $5.00 in superb blocks and the same values in plate number strips of four. These latter included a strip of the 4c blue error, only one other being known which was in the Ackerman collection. He also had a block of the 2c imperforate.

20TH CENTURY

This 20th century collection contained singles and blocks including possibly the finest lot of plate blocks ever gotten together. He also went in for shades and as many of the errors as he could get. He had the 24c inverted air mail and all the 1901 inverted centers and most of the part perf. blocks. In the plate number blocks he had many of the higher denominations.

DEPARTMENTS

This collection of the U. S. Departments (or official stamps) was among the finest known. He had almost all the known blocks including the rare Executive 1c, 2c, 3c and 10c. The 1c was a block of six and the only block known to exist of this value. He also had the rare block of the Agriculture 1c on the soft paper.

U. S. POSTMASTERS

He had a fair but not remarkable lot of these including Baltimore, two 5c on covers and a 5c envelope, Providence 5c on cover, Brattleboro 5c on cover, Millbury 5c; St. Louis, three each of the 5c and 10c. In the New Yorks he had upwards of 100 of the 5c including some pairs, fine lots on covers and a R. H. M.

Mr. P. H. Ward purchased his Postmasters, Departments, and most of the 19th Century and all the fine 20th Century.

U. S. 19TH CENTURY STAMPS ON COVERS

Mr. Walcott was always very fond of stamps that had been used and on the original covers. He had a remarkable lot of cancellations of all kinds in the U. S. 19th Century issues. He seems to have had a particular liking for Green Cancellations. After his death I purchased, through Mr. Laurence, about 4000 of these covers.

CONFEDERATE STATES—GENERAL ISSUE

Next to the used Patriotic Covers, this group was his special hobby. In forming this collection—the greatest ever gathered together—he was much indebted to his friend Mr. Edward S. Knapp, who plated and arranged the whole collection. It was matchless in uncut and reconstructed sheets and panes of the lithographed stamps. In rare cancellations on covers he had a collection second to none.

As has been shown before, Mr. Walcott was a student of history, especially that connected with the Southern States, and I think this is what led him to take up this group of stamps.

When he was forced to realize on his other collection he still continued to hold his Confederates, General Issues, and his Patriotic Covers, and these are now being disposed of by his friend, Robert Laurence.

Robert Laurence became acquainted with Mr. George Walcott when he was in the employ of J. M. Bartels Co. This acquaintance soon ripened into a very true friendship between the two men who had much in common.

Mr. Walcott placed many of his stamps in Mr. Laurence's hands for sale and among the fine items he disposed of were almost complete sets of blocks of four of the U. S. 1869 in unused and also in used condition.

After the death of Mr. Walcott it was seen by one of the terms of his Will that he had arranged for Mr. Laurence to undertake the disposal of his stamps and this was confirmed by the Executors.
