Description of Postmarks

Type A – Manuscript – G B Div

Type Aa – Manuscript – G B D

Type B – G. B. D. (small letters) in top line and date in second line.

Type C – G. B. D. (small letters) in top of oval and date in bottom of oval. The first letter of the month is in the left side of the oval. In some instances, the “B” in G. B. D. appears to be backwards.

Type D – G B D (large letters) in arc over date.

Type Da – Same as Type D but in blue ink.

Recorded Dates of Use and Count

Postmark	Color	Earliest	Latest	Recorded Covers
Type A	Black	12 Sep 1861	12 Sep 1861	1
Type Aa	Black	12 Sep 1861	18 Sep 1861	8
Type B	Black	20 Sep 1861	18 Oct 1861*	43

* A 2009 article by Jim Cate gives the latest date of use of Type B as 19 Oct 1861 (see References).

Notes

General

A number of the postmarks are poorly struck or struck over a portion of a patriotic marking. While the type marking can be determined the date may be illegible. The Type B markings sometimes have a period after the date that can be interpreted as the number "1." For these reasons many of the dates are based on the source description.

The Division Postmaster

How General Banks got a postmaster for his division is best told by Richard Graham. What we do know is that Roscoe E. Houghton was officially appointed as Special Agent to General Banks' Division on 10 October 1861 (see References). In this capacity Houghton acted as postmaster as evidenced by the covers bearing his postmark. It should be noted that this was almost a month after the first General Banks Division postmarks began to appear and twenty days after the first recorded use of a handstamped postmark. Houghton was apparently offered and accepted the position earlier but had to wait for the bureaucratic paper work to make his appointment official.

The Banks Division Postmarks

In addition to the postmarks listed in this census two others were used. Both were in the design of regular circular postmarks and were used in specific time periods between late March 1862 and the end of November 1862. They can be difficult to tell apart and are much more plentiful than the markings listed in this census. For these reasons they are not included in this census. See Graham in References for more information.

The Gap Between the Two Type D Postmarks

There is a three month gap between the last use of the black Type D postmark and the first use of the blue Type Da postmark. There is no known reason for this.
